DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-8 are presented for examination on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 is rendered vague and indefinite by the phrases “composition ... consisting of an active principle” (lines 1-2) and “wherein said active principle consists essentially of an aqueous extract of red vine leaves” (lines 3-4). These phrases cause confusion with respect to the definition of the recited essential active principle – e.g., does the composition consist of (closed language) an aqueous extract of red vine leaves or does it consist essentially of (open language) an aqueous extract of red vine leaves?

Claim 8 is rendered vague and indefinite by the phrase “divided up in 1 to 3 capsules or tablets a day” because it is unclear as to the actual meaning of the latter phrase: “a day” – e.g., does someone physically divide up 1 to 3 capsules a day or is this meant to define a post process of making step (within the claimed product-by-process claims) such as a process of using (e.g., administering 1-3 capsules or tablets a day)? In either case, this overall phrase limitation is improper and confusing as it does not read upon the product-by-process of claim 1 (from which claim 8 depends).

Art Unit: 1654

All other claims depend from a rejected claim and are, therefore, also rejected under USC 112, second paragraph for the reasons set forth above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Abeles (US 3,136,693 – please note that this reference is the US equivalent of IDS reference GB 934,554).

The claims are drawn to an oral composition comprising an aqueous extract of red vine leaves as the active ingredient therein comprising amount ranges of naturally occurring flavonoids and anthocyanins therein, within a product-by-process claim.

The cited reference teaches a composition (including in pill/tablet form) consisting of (or consisting essentially of) an aqueous extract of red vine leaves as the active ingredient therein which appears to be identical to (and thus anticipate) the presently claimed red vine leaf extract composition (including inherently comprising the instantly claimed levels of flavonoids and anthocyanins, as well as the naturally-occurring quercetin derivatives of claim 5, therein) since both were prepared using similar hot aqueous extraction (including the same essential temperature heating range) and concentration steps, and both demonstrate the same/similar activity with respect to relieving venous insufficiency (see entire document including columns 1-2, Example 2, and claims). Consequently, the instantly claimed red vine leaf extract composition appears to be anticipated by the cited reference.

In the alternative, even if the claimed red vine leaf extract composition is not identical to the referenced red vine leaf extract composition with regard to some unidentified characteristics, the differences between that which is disclosed and that which is claimed are considered to be so slight that the referenced red vine leaf extract composition is likely to inherently possess the same characteristics of the claimed red vine leaf extract composition particularly in view of the similar characteristics which they have been shown to share. Thus, the claimed red vine leaf extract composition would have been obvious to those of ordinary skill in the art within the meaning of USC 103. Further, if not anticipated, the result-effective adjustment of particular conventional working conditions (e.g., forming a tablet or other commonly employed oral pharmaceutical form comprising a result-effective amount of the red leaf extract beneficially taught by Abeles therein) is deemed merely a matter of judicious selection and routine optimization which is well within the purview of the skilled artisan.

Accordingly, the claimed invention as a whole was at least prima facie obvious, if not anticipated by the reference, especially in the absence of sufficient, clear, and convincing evidence to the contrary.

Art Unit: 1654

Please note that the Patent and Trademark Office is not equipped to conduct experimentation in order to determine whether the levels of flavonoids and/or anthocyanins within Applicant's red leaf extract differ and, if so, to what extent, from the levels within the red leaf extract disclosed by the cited reference. Therefore, with the showing of the reference, the burden of establishing non-obviousness by objective evidence is shifted to the Applicants.

Please also note that "the patentability of a product does not depend upon its method of production. If the product in [a] product-by-process claim is the same as or obvious from a product of the prior art, [then] the claim is unpatentable even though the prior [art] product was made by a different process." In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964, 966 (Fed. Cir. 1985). Once the examiner provides a rationale tending to show that the claimed product appears to be the same or similar to that of the prior art, although produced by a different process, the burden shifts to applicant to come forward with evidence establishing an unobvious difference between the claimed product and the prior art product. In re Marosi, 218 USPQ 289, 292 (Fed. Cir. 1983).

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-8 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-28 of copending Application No. 10/743,170. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both are drawn to a pharmaceutical formulation, including a tablet, comprising an aqueous extract of red vine leaves (prepared by the same essential steps) as the active ingredient therein.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.
